I've been a professional writer for most of my adult life and I've been writing science fiction for at least twenty years now. My real name is John Burke but I use the pen-name "Al Thor" because I think that a novelist should have a more exciting name than John Burke. I used to have enormous problems writing manuscripts for publishers. First I would start scrambling a few ideas on a notebook before writing my first draft on a typewriter. This is how things went on until recently when I discovered the computer, which changed my way of writing (novels) for ever.
